Two men, seven women will comprise cheerleading squad

After a year's lapse, there again will be men on the OU cheerleading squad. Ben Tobias and Wes Fulner will join seven women to comprise this year's squad.

About 30 girls took part in the spirited two hour tryouts. The committee which chose the girls reported that decision was one of the toughest in years.

Pep rally Friday

Miss Zerbe and Miss Johnson led cheers at the game with Nebraska Wesleyan Saturday night. The head cheerleader said, "We are trying to make this the most spirited year OU has ever had."

The new leaders will get their first opportunity to cheer at the opening pep rally of the year. It is scheduled for Friday at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium. Classes will be shortened.

Home games

The first home game of the year will be against South Dakota University Saturday afternoon. Other chances for OU boosters to air their lungs at home games will be at the Homecoming game against Kansas State of Emporia, Oct. 20, the Morningside college game Nov. 3, and the game opposing Northern Illinois, Nov. 17.

Technical school covers six areas

OU's Technical Institute is spreading its training over six major areas this year.

Institute Director Dean C. W. Helmstadter has announced that the fields include life insurance, casualty-property insurance, engineering courses, management courses, supervisory courses and courses for women.

Dean Helmstadter added that courses in job instruction, job relations and job methods will be arranged for any firm, in groups of ten to 15 workers. Classes will be held at the university or in downtown classrooms.

Filing and indexing, retail buying, and office management and control are offered again for business administration students. Psych-Social Dynamics in School Practice, a study of relations that hinder or promote a favorable classroom atmosphere, is being taught by Avery Stephens, assistant professor of education and psychology.

OU to act as information center under new AF expansion program

Women interested in becoming reserve officers in the Air Force and can qualify may now receive direct commissions as second and first lieutenants. Omaha U and other universities and colleges having ROTC units will act as information centers for prospective officers.

Air Force recruiters have estimated that 2000 women will receive appointment during the next year under the expansion program.

Must have BA

Capt. Allen J. Black, public information officer of the 2473d AF Reserve Training Center and S/1cl Lee Werthman, local Army-Air Force recruiting sergeant will be at the Air ROTC headquarters here tomorrow morning to set up the program and interview any interested women.

To qualify for the direct appointment, the candidate must have a BA degree and be a citizen of the United States between the ages of 24 and 32. Three years administrative or managerial experience is also needed.

OU senior attends Marine Corps camp at San Diego

Raymond Kansier, a senior at O.U. attended a six weeks U. S. Marine Corps summer training program at San Diego.

The men who completed the junior course will be recommended for summer training next year. This will lead to commissions in the Reserve or the regular Marine Corps.

First of two elections will concern only frosh

All-school election Oct. 10 will determine Homecoming Princess, 18 school officers

Two election dates have been circled on the OU calendar for the next week and a half . . . with one polling turnout for freshmen only.

Bail gives latest enrollment total at Regent meet

According to latest figures, 1,560 students have registered for fall classes, and all but 200 have paid their fees. These figures were released by OU President Dr. Milo Bail at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

The Regents approved expenditure of $6,000 for improvements made on campus buildings during the summer. The board also authorized Finance Secretary Charles Hoff to get bids on construction of a paved road from the stadium to Dodge Street. The cost was estimated at $5,000.

Three new faculty appointments were also approved at the meeting. Naming of Franz H. Rathman as a chemistry instructor and Harold H. Wood as director of workshops were previously announced in The Gateway.

The other new faculty member is Herbert Berry as assistant professor of English.

In the last action, Dr. Bail was authorized to set $15 deposit fees for Air Force ROTC and band uniforms.

Rosenberg expects no change in deferments

There is no plan this year to abolish student deferments, according to Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense, in a special statement to the American Council on Education this month.

She said, however that it may be necessary to decrease the number of college deferments next year (1952-1953), but no change has been recommended to Selective Service that would affect students during the current year.

Counseling office for veterans now defunct

The OU Vets' Administration and Guidance Center is now defunct, having closed June 30. Since the office opened at the University in 1945, 5,005 veterans have been counseled.

The largest amount of veteran students was in February, 1950 when 205 persons took the counseling and vocational tests. Only 42 persons were counseled in the last three months.

Wardle's biography of 18th century lady goes to press

An eighteen century feminist, Mary Wollstonecraft, has literally been brought to life on the pages of a critical biography called Mary Wollstonecraft, written by the head of the Omaha University English Department, Dr. Ralph M. Wardle.

This revealing biography, the product of "seven or eight summers research," according to its author, is currently being published by the University of Kansas Press.

Some of the material in the book includes the unpublished and almost obscure letters of Mary and her husband, William Godwin. Dr. Wardle had made a flight to London in order to do research on the material and select it for his publication.

Dr. Wardle's work has been praised as "alive with the revolutionary thought of the 18th century with which the author is obviously familiar. In addition to his scholarship, the author makes Mary live her poignant life and suffer her tragic death right before the readers eyes." The criticism appeared in the Library Journal and was by Francis Alter Boyle, librarian at the Madison, New Jersey Public Library.

The fly-leaf of the book praises Wardle's "Thorough investigation of the fascinating figure," and points out that "the author has drawn upon many letters and contributions to periodicals not consulted by previous biographers."

Friday the frosh class will have a chance to select their Typical Freshman Boy and Girl. An annual event, the voting will take place at the Freshman Mixer Friday afternoon. (For details, see page 4)

Fill 19 offices

The all-school election has been set for Oct. 10. Nineteen offices will be open to members of all classes, six of which will be on the Student Council.

The top honor will go to the woman selected by the student body as their Homecoming Princess. The Princess will preside at the Homecoming dance and game Oct. 20. Her identity will not be known until the dance.

Present vacancies on the Council include the four freshman seats for two men and two

Three ex-editors wish luck to new staffers

Gateway editors seem to be destined to a life of travel.

Last week letters from the last three "chiefs" arrived from Washington, D. C., San Antonio, Tex., and Philadelphia, Penn.

Tom "TNT" Townsend is now working for the NEA Journal in Washington. A member of the editorial staff, Townsend headed The Gateway during the first semester of the '50-'51 school year.

Glenna "Perk" Perkins, now Mrs. Don Slezak, is living in San Antonio. Lt. Slezak is stationed at the air base there.

Mrs. William Martin, formerly Lois Brady is associate editor of Campbell Soups' employee publications. Her husband is attending Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Slezak headed The Gateway staff during the last semester of the '50-'51 school year.

Mrs. Martin served as editor-in-chief from January, 1950, to June of that year. She was the first woman to hold that position following World War II.

Tales of Shrdlu - By Berk Forsythe

Every year the feature editors are called upon to think up new titles for their columns. Since the present trend is from nasty to filthy, I've coined the term "Shrdlu," an ancient Egyptian expression meaning "Shame on you, Harry Truman."

The origin of the word dates back to the dynasty of King Tut, and according to usually reliable sources, it was first uttered by him. It seems that his wife was a rather extravagant spender, buying two quarts of gnsphlt per week, when they could have easily have gotten by on one. The troubled Tut, a noted anti-inflationist and supporter of the under-consumption theory of economics, finally could bear no more. In anger he screamed the word that best fit the crime: "Shrdlu!"

No record of the word is available until two dynasties later during the reign of King Cliff. It's reported that the King ordered the death of a man who uttered it during the presence of ladies. Gradually the word fell out of usage and would have become completely lost had not an ardent Republican archeologist dug it out of the ruins of an ancient Democratic Convention site.

It was later translated by Roderic B. Crane, eminent philosopher, in his book "Four Days in a Wine Cellar." Dr. Crane was in high spirits when interviewed by a Gateway reporter. "It was a tough job," said Crane. "But I attacked it like a professional. I pored many hours over my work."

(Ed. note: This was taken as a free translation of Dr. Crane's actual statement, which was: "I spent most of my working hours pouring.")

During my faithful four years of indentureship to the University of Omaha and The Gateway, I have served under many tyrants (both editors and professors). Foremost in the first classification was our dearly departed editor-emeritus, Tom "TNT" Townsend, now on the editorial staff of the National Education Association Journal in Washington, D.C. The following is an excerpt from his latest letter.

"Washington is a thrill for a country boy like me from 'out West.' There are so many other people's businesses to stick my nose into. I thought of contributing a Washington column (to The Gateway) like the Washington Daze, Capitol Columns, or Tommy in Blunderland, but I don't know whether I could compete with The Wastebasket another year."

Tom is hereby invited to write a column for The Gateway, provided he uses the title "Tommy in Blunderland." Look for this new feature from our Washington correspondent.

Tom also made this personal note to me. "You'd like it here, Berk. The latest census figures show 100 women for 89.7 men. And you're the best seven-tenths of a man I know."

Could it happen here?

Shack gives away ice cream

The Snack Shack is giving away ice cream today. All the student has to do is clip the coupon from this page and turn it in between 1 and 4 p.m. today at the Shack.

The only catch is that the student must attempt to name the new frozen custard cone that's being handed out. Each entry must be written in the provided space on the coupon.

This contest honors the new ice cream machine that now graces the Shack. This machine makes regular ice cream in all flavors and the frozen custard cone in one delicious flavor. An uninspired description of this flavor would state it as a liquified vanilla with a couple of other flavors tossed in.

Ice cream for both the cafe-

Public fails to react to 'controversial' film

The recent moving picture "Take Care of My Little Girl" fell flat on its face as far as the general public was concerned, according to a survey taken by the Associated Collegiate Press.

On the one hand stood Hollywood, blasting fraternity and sorority life on college campuses from every point that could be imagined.

On the other hand stood the Interfraternity Research and Advisory Council, which denounced the movie as "Communistic inspired propaganda."

And in the middle stood the general public, unaffected by the propaganda from either side.

teria and the Shack will be made in the new machine. It was installed the Friday before school opened.

Although Miss Auten doesn't know the capacity of the machine, she expects to find out today. This machine has been blessed with a spare tank on top and conveniences unknown even to the fabulous "Dunderback's Machine."

A tisket, a tasket . . .

"Petition, petition—who's got the petition?"

Every year about this time a similar cry is heard throughout the halls of Omaha U. The idea of a petition has become as much of a tradition here as the "Dean's List" and, we hope, The Gateway.

In our opinion this university has made strides in almost every field open to it. And now that a new year has begun, there is hope that a step forward may also be taken so far as the ever-present petition is concerned.

The Gateway may be wrong, but the logical group to handle this seeming "hot potato" is the Student Council. It is on the Council that many leaders of the school are found—from here should come the aspirin for this headache.

The Gateway would gladly back such a project if it were taken on. It might involve more than a little research—and more than a lot of work. But a solution would undoubtedly win the eternal gratitude of students with aching feet, sponsors with aching right hands, and administration members with aching heads.

We think it's worth a try—do you?

Omaha eleven trounces Wesleyan gridsters 25-0

Sparked by Keith Christie in the driver's seat of a classy single wing offense, Omaha University's gridsters overpowered Nebraska Wesleyan 25-0 in Lincoln Saturday night.

It was the debut for Coach Cardwell's charges, and the Indians responded neatly by running up decided edges in all the statistics departments.

UO scores thrice

OU scored three times in the first half and settled for one marker in the last canto. Christie pitched to Aksel Schmidt for a 35-yard touchdown in the second period but a penalty nullified the score.

The game was little over two minutes old when linebacker Don Hopkins intercepted a Wesleyan pass and rambled 25 yards to the Plainsman 12.

It took Christie exactly two running plays before the Red and Black had a never to be relinquished lead.

Fullback Jerry Ziehe countered the other two touchdowns in the first half on short plunges from the one-yard line. John Wiren converted his only extra point after the third score.

Indians threaten

In the last half, the Indians threatened twice before scoring. A fumble and a penalty stopped two drives inside the five-yard line.

Bob Rose intercepted a Taylor Hanson aerial and was downed on the Wesleyan 47 to set up the last score. Hard-running John Wiren sprinted 31 yards to the Plainsman one and needed two tries to hit pay dirt.

Howard DuBois and Lewis Walker were outstanding along the Wesleyan line while Taylor Hanson, Larry Lewis, and Don Hull were the big guns in the Plainsman backfield.

Vacationing Pennsylvanian lands at Omaha U; Wolenski takes over equipment manager post

By Bob Peck
Ass't. Sports Editor

Meet Mike Wolenski. Mike, a likeable transplanted Pennsylvanian, is the new OU equipment manager.

He comes to the University from Kings College in Wilkes-Barre, Penn., where he was equipment manager, custodian, ticket-taker and all around handy man.

Wolenski rather stumbled on to the job at OU. He was on his vacation from Pennsylvania and decided to visit his old boss, Tom Brock. Mike explained that Brock was the athletic director at one time at Kings College. Brock called his attention to the opening at the West Dodge school and Wolenski wired back his resignation to Kings College.

When asked why he took the job so fast, he pointed out that. "They have a nice equipment room, I like it here, and I like to work for Tom."

Mike is 32, single, and he quickly added, "available."

Wolenski spent seven and one-half years in the service in World War II. He was wounded three times while seeing action in the European theatre, and was discharged a staff sergeant.

An equipment manager's job is certainly not a soft one, Mike said. "He gets to school about 7 a.m. to open up and leaves about 7:30 p.m. "It will be later than that when basketball begins," he added.

Aside from all his regular locker room chores, Mike checks out locks to the physical educa-

All intramural heads to see Director Gorr

In anticipation of another big year, Intramural Director Ernie Gorr is busy making plans to get the program started as quick as possible.

The first item on the agenda is that all organizations should contact Gorr regarding managers and other vital information concerning intramurals. It's essential that the representatives see Gorr immediately so that touch football and bowling can get under way within the next two weeks.

All men not affiliated with a group should also list their name will Gorr if they desire to take part in 'murals.

The system developed is that the city is divided into four sections and those living within these defined limits play on their respective district teams.

Those residing north of Dodge and east of 30th Street are known as the Sioux. The section north of Dodge and west of 30th is the Pawnee territory.

In the south division, men living east of 30th are on the Blackhawk reservation, while those on the west side of 30th and south of Dodge belong to the Otoe tribe.

If enough students outside the city limits are interested in 'mural competition a team will be billed as the Cherokees.

tion classes and makes the trips with the teams, getting the equipment to games before the team and getting it home afterwards. This means loading a truck full of equipment and driving ahead of the team to the game.

Although his duties are many, none are too great to stop the quick smile of capable Mike Wolenski.

Two Omaha U grid rivals take setback in openers

Unlike the Indian footballers, South Dakota University, OU's foe this Saturday at University Stadium, ran into all sorts of trouble in their season opener last Saturday.

The Coyotes were completely outclassed by a nifty Marquette University team by the score of 48-6.

Another eleven on the Omaha slate also lost their initial start. Wayne University of Detroit was walloped by Iowa State 53-21.

Gorr issues call to runners

Head Track Coach Ernie Gorr has announced that all men interested in cross-country running and track should report to him during this week.

Gorr placed special emphasis on the distance men because of the possibility of inter-collegiate cross-country meets within the area.

Women's Intramural membership drive begins tomorrow; girls register in second floor hall

Tomorrow through Friday are important dates for all sport-minded women on the OU campus, as these are the days of the OUWI 1951 membership drive.

Representatives will be at the table, on the second floor from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. starting tomorrow morning.

Everyone, old and new students, is eligible for membership in the organization. The only prerequisite is an interest in sports.

A varied program of sports and parties beginning with soccer, baseball and badminton, followed with volleyball, basketball, archery, and ending up the year with the Honor's Banquet, has been planned.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 22...THE WOODPECKER

Woodrow almost bit off more than he could chew when he tackled the cigarette tests! But he pecked away 'til he smoked out the truth: Such an important item as mildness can't be tossed off in a fleeting second! A "swift sniff" or a "perfunctory puff" proves practically nothing! He, like millions of smokers, found one test that doesn't leave you up a tree.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

Sororities fete pledges at banquets at Athletic Club, Blackstone Hotel

Preference banquets and formal pledging highlighted the first day of school. With banquets at the Athletic Club and the Blackstone Hotel, 80 women were pledged to four sororities.

Alpha Xi Delta held its banquet in the club room at the Athletic Club. Over 65 women attended the formal dinner.
